ETHICS

FPRA Code of Ethics

As a member of the Florida Public Relations Association, I subscribe to the belief that inherent in the practice of public relations is the obligation of a public trust which requires fulfillment of these principles:

1. Conduct their professional life in accord with the public interest.
2. Exemplify high standards of honesty and integrity while carrying out dual obligations to a client or employer and to the democratic process.
3. Deal fairly with the public, with past or present clients or employers and with fellow practitioners, giving due respect to the ideal of free inquiry and to the opinions of others.
4. Adhere to the highest standards of accuracy and truth, avoiding extravagant claims for ideas and words borrowed from others.
5. Not knowingly disseminate false or misleading information and shall act promptly to correct erroneous communications for which they are responsible.
6. Not engage in any practice, which has the purpose of corrupting the integrity of channels of communication or the processes of government.
7. Be prepared to identify publicly the name of the client or employer on whose behalf any public communication is made.
8. Not use any individual or organization professing to serve or represent an announced cause, or professing to be independent or unbiased, but actually serving another or undisclosed interest.
9. Not guarantee the achievement of specified results beyond members direct control.
10. Not represent conflicting or competing interests without the express consent of those concerned, given after a full disclosure of the facts.
11. Not place themselves in a position where their personal interest is or may be in conflict with an obligation to an employer or client, or others, without full disclosure of such interests to all involved.
12. Not accept fees, commissions, gifts or any other consideration from anyone except clients or employers.
13. Scrupulously safeguard the confidences and privacy right of present, former and prospective clients and employers.
14. Not intentionally damage the professional reputation or practice of another practitioner.

Approved in 1987 as proposed by the North American Public Relations Council (NAPRC), replacing the 1959 code of ethics.

MEMBERSHIP CATEGORIES

Voting Members

Individual Professional: An individual, professionally qualified by education or experience, who devotes at least 50 percent of his or her working time to public relations activities and pays his or her own dues. The membership belongs to the individual.

Institutional Professional: An individual professionally qualified by education or experience, who devotes at least 50 percent of his or her working time to public relations activities, and who is representing an organization, corporation, governmental agency or similar institution. The organization pays the dues and owns the membership.

Multi-Institutional Professional: Additional members from the same organization, corporation or governmental agency department who are professionally qualified by education or experience and devote at least 50 percent of their working time to public relations activities. Dues for the first member from an organization are paid at the institutional professional rate. The organization pays the dues and owns the membership.

Retired Professional Membership: Any professional member who has retired from the full-time practice of public relations for profit and has been a member in good standing for at least five years. If at any time the member chooses to return to the full-time practice of public relations, retired membership rates would no longer apply.

Associate: A person professionally or academically qualified for professional membership, but who is temporarily not actively engaged in a public relations profession. This membership is available for a maximum of one year.

Non-Voting Members

Student-to-Professional Member: Any person professionally qualified by education, who has graduated within the past 12 months from an accredited college or university with a degree in the related field of public relations/communications, devotes at least 50% or more of his/her working time to public relations activities, and pays his/her own dues. This membership is available for a maximum of one year.

Allied: Any person, either individual or representative of a firm or corporation, interested in the activities of the Association and in an allied field of the public relations profession. If the individual pays the dues, he or she owns the membership. If an organization pays, the membership belongs to the organization.

Student: Full-time students enrolled in accredited institutions of learning and interested in public relations. Student memberships run from September 1 – August 31. Students are not required to submit a resume; however, it is recommended. Unofficial transcripts may be requested.
